

Vision statement

We seek to make a difference through the power of peaceful dispute resolution: developing meaningful steps to create a better world.

Mission statement

INADR is a non-profit organization that is connecting ADR professionals and young talents from different parts of the world. Our mission is to build, through education, world-wide recognition of the power of dispute resolution processes to peacefully resolve conflicts and promote conciliation and healing.

Values

The InterNational Academy of Dispute Resolution adheres to the highest ethical principles and moral standards.

We aspire for all members of the INADR community to adhere to and respect our core values.

Openness and Dedication

We strongly support collaboration and wide cooperation while maintaining and following our primary mission. We share in our dedication and commitment to each other and strive to support one another in reaching our potential, both professionally and personally.

Democracy and Respect

We make decisions in a democratic and respectful way. We strengthen leadership and accountability through fairness, honesty, and transparency.

Education and Professionalism

We are committed to promoting education and seek to advance opportunities that enhance our growth through gaining and disseminating knowledge. Our collaborative environment fosters members' personal development and professional growth.

Inclusiveness and Diversity

We embrace and promote diversity (in all its forms) and equality in all INADR internal and external activities. We value different perspectives, we seek to increase diverse representation, and we are committed to create opportunities for cultural awareness.

Reconciliation and Empathy

We approach people and differences with kindness, we embrace a spirit of empathy and compassion, and we seek to foster a world of understanding and healing. Our goal is peace.

Honesty and Integrity

We are committed to promote a world that values truth, honesty and justice by adhering to our core values and constantly seeking to maintain the highest ethical standards.
